Happy Valentine's Day!

Each year on the 14th of February, candy, flowers, and gifts are exchanged all in the name of St. Valentine, a Catholic saint who lived in the third century. The facts of the life of St. Valentine are shrouded in legend. One story tells that he was arrested on orders from the Roman Emperor for being a Christian and that he actually sent the first "valentine" greeting.

The legend explains that while in prison a young girl, who may have been the jailor's daughter, would visit and encourage him. They fell in love and before his death it is alleged that he wrote her a letter, which he signed "From your Valentine." Although the history of his life is unclear, each of the stories emphasizes Valentine's appeal as a sympathetic, heroic and beloved figure.

Today images of hearts, flowers, doves, winged cupids reflect the sentiments of this commemoration. While each of these objects has meaning attached to it, we are blessed to have symbols of affection and friendship present on our property each day of the year in our residents who live in our apartments which are affectionately known as "C'est la Vie."

February 11th – World Day of the Sick

When we, or those we love, become sick, everything changes. Routines are upended, roles are changed, and the future seems uncertain and sometimes it is forever changed. February 11th is the World Day of the Sick, a commemoration introduced by Pope John Paul II over 25 years ago. It is one way for us to offer special prayers and outreach for those suffering from any type of illness.

There are so many kinds of grave suffering: incurable and chronic diseases, psychological diseases, situations calling for rehabilitation, conditions requiring palliative care, numerous forms of disability for people of all ages. In each situation, what is needed is a personalized approach to the person and to their families, not just of curing but also of caring, in view of an integral human healing.

In experiencing illness and suffering, individuals not only feel threatened in their physical integrity, but also in the relational, intellectual, affective and spiritual dimensions of their lives. For this reason, in addition to therapy and support, they need care and attention. In a word, they need love. At the side of every sick person, there is also a family, who also suffer and who are in need of support and comfort.

Jesus does not make demands of those who endure these situations of frailty, suffering and weakness, but offers his mercy and his comforting presence. He looks upon wounded humanity with eyes that gaze into the heart of each person. His compassionate gaze embraces people in their entirety, each person in his or her health condition, disregarding no one, but rather inviting everyone to share in his life and to experience his tender love. “Come to me, all you who are burdened, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon your shoulders and learn from me, for I am meek and humble of heart; and you will find rest for yourselves. For my yoke is easy, and my burden light!” (Matthew 11:28-30) This day and this month is an important opportunity for us to reflect on the spirit of our caring for those who are sick as well as those who provide care to them. As part of our reflection, we offer this prayer:

Tender and merciful God, you watch over your creatures with unfailing care, keep us ever in the safe embrace of your love. We bring before you those suffering in mind, body and spirit. Touch and make holy their suffering. Give them the strength of your power and the stillness of your peace. Minister to them through the compassionate service of others. Fill those who care for them with your strength, courage, and joy for the good they do in your name. Amen.
